

Our job is to help your employees focus on their job.

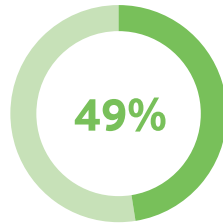

The challenge for employers

Helping your employees take care of the needs of their older family members helps your bottom line.

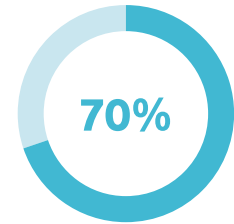

LOST PRODUCTIVITY

20% of employees lose ten or more working hours per week to caregiving.

STRESS AND STRAIN

49% of family caregivers experience clinical exhaustion.

HIDDEN CONCERNS

70% of employees hide their caregiving responsibility from their employers.

How we help

By matching families with their own master's level social worker, an expert in elder care, Homethrive helps reduce stress and maintain focus among employees caring for older family members. Our Care Guides work with families to plan, coordinate services, and avoid the uncertainty and surprises that come with helping older adults age at home. Homethrive's services are available as a voluntary or covered benefit to support your employees and their families nationwide.

- We help manage and mitigate many of the day-to-day demands that distract employees from work.
- We build trust so families can worry less and focus more on work and themselves.
- We help employees caring for older adults feel in control of the situation and prepare for changes to come.
- We assist employees in navigating complex situations after a sudden change in a loved one's health or situation.

We take the uncertainty out of caring for an aging adult.

How Homethrive Care Guides help

It's simple: each of your employees gets easy access to their own master's level social worker (a Homethrive Care Guide) and a digital platform with advice, tools, and supportive services to help them and their aging loved ones.

GETTING STARTED

Your employee's assigned Care Guide gets to know them and their family's unique needs during a one-on-one on-boarding call.

DEVELOP A PLAN & GOALS

The assigned Care Guide supports the health and well-being of your employee and their aging loved one by building a nurturing relationship and creating a plan to address both their needs. From navigating hard conversations to setting up home care, and everything in between, they are there to help.

PERSONALIZED ADVICE & COACHING

Easy access to their Care Guide via text and phone helps your employee address health and wellness concerns quickly. Their Care Guide helps them solve problems and provides guidance for your employee and their aging loved one, keeping the whole family thriving.

COORDINATION OF SUPPORTIVE SERVICES

Your employee's Care Guide can help identify free services and recommend Homethrive-vetted specialists for meal and medicine delivery, transportation, home care, home safety improvements, and more.
